I find it difficult to translate my feelings into words

The feelings seem to express themselves better as sounds

I wonder if there are underlying meanings,
if there are patterns which tie everything together
and if I can somehow lead you in to my own language.

I recorded myself talking in my own language during various emotional encounters and transcribed the recordings into 1,000+ words

My internal language (transcription)

The patterns in my own language are the sum of the languages, accents and sounds I know.

To me, they are much more expressive.

Next time I say I'm panicking...
